A VISIT TO BEDLAM.

[From the MAN OF FEELING, ſuppoſed to have been written by Dr. Goldſmith.]

OF thoſe things called ſights, in London, which every ſtranger is ſuppoſed deſirous to ſee, Bedlam is one. To that place, therefore, an acquaintance of Harley's, after having accompanied him to ſeveral other ſhows, propoſed a viſit. Harley objected to it, "becauſe, ſaid he, I think it an inhuman practice to expoſe the greateſt miſery with which our nature is afflicted, to every idle viſitant who can afford a trifling perquiſite to the keeper; eſpecially, as it is a diſtreſs which the humane muſt ſee with the painful reflection, that it is not in their power to alleviate it." He was overpowered, however, by the ſolicitations of his friend, and the other perſons of the party (amongſt whom were ſeveral ladies) and they went in a body to Moorfields.

Their conductor led them firſt to the diſmal manſions of thoſe who are in the moſt horrid ſtate of incurable madneſs. The clanking of chains, the wildneſs of their cries, and the imprecations which ſome of them uttered, formed a ſcene inexpreſſibly ſhocking. Harley and his companions, eſpecially the female part of them, begged their guide to return: He ſeemed ſurpriſed at their uneaſineſs, and was with difficulty prevailed on to leave that part of the houſe without ſhowing them ſome others, who, as he expreſſed it, in the phraſe of thoſe that keep wild beaſts for a ſhow, were much better worth ſeeing than any they had paſſed, being ten times more fierce and unmanageable.

He led them next to that quarter where thoſe reſide, who, as they are not dangerous to themſelves or others, enjoy a certain degree of freedom, according to the ſtate of their diſtemper.

Harley had fallen behind his companion, looking at a man who was making pendulums with bits of thread, and little balls of clay. He had delineated a ſegment of a circle on the wall with chalk, and marked their different vibrations, by interſecting it with croſs lines. A decent looking man came up, and ſmiling at the maniac, turned to Harley, and told him, that gentleman had once been a very celebrated mathematician.——"He fell a ſacrifice, ſaid he, to the theory of comets; for having with infinite labour, formed a table on the conjectures of Sir Iſaac Newton, he was diſappointed in the return of one of thoſe luminaries, and was very ſoon after obliged to be placed here by his friends. If you pleaſe to follow me, Sir, continued the ſtranger, I believe I ſhall be able to give you a more ſatisfactory account of the unfortunate people you ſee here, than the man who attends your companions." Harley bowed, and accepted his offer.

The next perſon they came up to had ſcrawled a variety of figures on a piece of ſlate. Harley had the curioſity to take a nearer view of them. They conſiſted of different columns, on the top of which were marked South-Sea annuities, India ſtock, and three per cent. Annuities, Conſol. "This, ſaid Harley's inſtructor, was a gentleman well known in Change-Alley. He was once worth fifty thouſand pounds, and had actually agreed for the purchaſe of an eſtate in the weſt, in order to realize his money; but he quarrelled with the proprietor about the repairs of the garden wall, and ſo returned to town to follow his old trade of ſtock jobbing a little longer; when an unlucky fluctuation of ſtock, in which he was engaged to an immenſe extent, reduced him at once to poverty and to madneſs. Poor wretch! he told me t'other day, that, againſt next payment of differences, he ſhould be ſome hundreds above a plum."

"It is a ſpondee, and I will maintain it," interrupted a voice on his left hand. This aſſertion was followed by a very rapid recital of ſome verſes from Homer. "That figure, ſaid the gentleman, whoſe clothes are ſo bedaubed with ſnuff, was a ſchool-maſter of reputation; he came hither to be reſolved of ſome doubts he entertained concerning the genuine pronunciation of the Greek vowels. In his higheſt fits, he makes frequent mention of one Mr. Bently."

"But deluſive ideas, Sir, are the motives of the greateſt part of mankind, and a heated imagination, the power by which their actions are incited; the world, in the eye of a philoſopher may be ſaid to be a large madhouſe." "It is true, anſwered Harley, the paſſions of men are temporary madneſſes; and ſometimes very fatal in their effects,

From Macedonia's madman to the Swede."

"It was indeed, ſaid the ſtranger, a very mad thing in Charles, to think of adding ſo vaſt a country as Ruſſia to his dominions; that would have been fatal indeed; the balance of the north would then have been loſt; but the Sultan and I would never have allowed it."—"Sir!" ſaid Harley, with no ſmall ſurpriſe on his countenance. "Why yes, anſwered the other, the Sultan and I; do you know me? I am the Chan of Tartary."

Harley was a good deal ſtruck by this diſcovery; he had prudence enough, however, to conceal his amazement, and bowing as low to the monarch as his dignity required, left him immediately, and joined his companions.

He found them in a quarter of the houſe ſet apart for the inſane of the other ſex, ſeveral of whom had gathered about the female viſitors, and were examining, with rather more accuracy than might have been expected, the particulars of their dreſs.

Separate from the reſt ſtood one, whoſe appearance had ſomething of ſuperior dignity. Her face, though pale and waſted, was leſs ſqualid than thoſe of the others, and ſhewed a dejection of that decent kind, which moves our pity, unmixed with horror; upon her, therefore, the eyes of all were immediately turned. The keeper, who accompanied them, obſerved it: "This, ſaid he, is a young lady, who was born to ride in her coach and ſix. She was beloved, if the ſtory I have heard is true, by a young gentleman, her equal in birth, though by no means her match in fortune; but love, they ſay, is blind, and ſo ſhe fancied him as much as he did her. Her father, it ſeems, would not hear of their marriage, and threatened to turn her out of doors if ever ſhe ſaw him again. Upon this the young gentleman took a voyage to the Weſt-Indies, in hopes of bettering his fortune, and obtaining his miſtreſs; but he was ſcarce landed, when he was ſeized with one of the fevers which are common in thoſe iſlands, and died in a few days, lamented by every one that knew him. This news ſoon reached his miſtreſs, who was at the ſame time preſſed by her father to marry a rich miſerly fellow, who was old enough to be her grandfather. The death of her lover had no effect on her inhuman parent; he was only the more earneſt for her marriage with the man he had provided for her; and what between her deſpair at the death of the one, and her averſion to the other, the poor young lady was reduced to the condition you ſee her in. But God would not proſper ſuch cruelty; her father's affairs ſoon after went to wreck, and he died almoſt a beggar."

Though this ſtory was told in very plain language, it had particularly attracted Harley's notice; he had given it the tribute of ſome tears. The unfortunate young lady had till now ſeemed entranced in thought, with her eyes fixed on a little garnet ring ſhe wore on her finger, ſhe turned them now upon Harley. "My Billy is no more! ſaid ſhe, do you weep for my Billy? bleſſings on your tears! I would weep too, but my brain is dry; and it burns, it burns, it burns!"—She drew nearer to Harley.—"Be comforted, young lady, ſaid he, your Billy is in heaven." "Is he, indeed? and ſhall we meet again? and ſhall that frightful man (pointing to the keeper) not be there? alas! I am grown naughty of late; I have almoſt forgotten to think of heaven; yet I pray ſometimes; when I can, I pray; and ſometimes I ſing; when I am ſaddeſt, I ſing (—You ſhall hear me, huſh!

"Light be the earth on Billy's breaſt,
"And green the ſod that wraps his grave!"

There was a plaintive wildneſs in the air not to be withſtood; and, except the keeper's, there was not an unmoiſtened eye around her.

"Do you weep again? ſaid ſhe, I would not have you weep; you are like my Billy; you are, believe me; juſt ſo he looked when he gave me this ring; poor Billy! 'twas the laſt time ever we met!——

"'Twas when the ſeas were roaring—I love you for reſembling my Billy; but I ſhall never love any man like him."—She ſtretched out her hand to Harley; he preſſed it between both of his, and bathed it with his tears.—"Nay, that is Billy's ring, ſaid ſhe, you cannot have it, indeed; but here is another, look here, which I plaited to day of ſome gold thread from this bit of ſtuff; will you keep it for my ſake? I am a ſtrange girl:—but my heart is harmleſs; my poor heart! it will burſt ſome day; feel how it beats."—She preſſed his hand to her boſom, then holding her head in the attitude of liſtening—"Hark! one, two, three! be quiet, thou little trembler; my Billy's cold!—but I had forgotten the ring."—She put it on his finger.—"Farewell! I muſt leave you now."—She would have withdrawn her hand; Harley held it to his lips.—"I dare not ſtay longer; my head throbs ſadly; farewell!—She walked with a hurried ſtep to a little apartment at ſome diſtance. Harley ſtood fixed in aſtoniſhment and pity! his friend gave money to the keeper—Harley looked on his ring.—He put a couple of guineas into the man's hand: "be kind to that unfortunate"—He burſt into tears, and left them.

French Aſperſions on Engliſh Liberty.

THE boaſted liberty of the Engliſh is, in reality, only an imaginary liberty, and has a very near affinity with that of Venice amidſt the carnival revelries.

A carman in England conceits it a point of liberty, that he can call any well-dreſſed man, a French ſon of a bitch, without being puniſhed for it.

A ſoldier who had been clapped in Newgate, for a robbery and manſlaughter, ſeeing one of his comrades in the ſtreet going by, called to him through the grates of the priſon, aſking him what news? Why, anſwered the other, there's a rebellion broke out in Scotland. God preſerve us, criedthe fettered ſoldier, ſhould thoſe raſcals get the upper-hand, farewell the liberty of Old England.

The Engliſh look on the French as a mob of ſlaves; a Frenchman however, at the foot of the throne, is more free than the Engliſh who deſpiſe and inſult him.

The ſpirit of liberty is quite independent of the form of government; it is the delicious fruit of philoſophy. The real philoſopher is ſatisfied in all moderate governments; he knows that there is not, that there cannot be any ſo well conſtituted, as to be totally free from fault or inconveniency.

ANECDOTE of STANISLAUS, King of POLAND.

SOME years ago he uſed to ride through the whole country in a calaſh. He was attended but by a ſingle page in thoſe tours, and amuſed himſelf by ſmoaking a pipe in the Turkiſh manner, no leſs than ſix feet long. On its being repreſented to him, one day, that he thus expoſed his ſacred perſon, Ah! what have I to fear, ſaid he, am I not in the midſt of my children? In my judgment, a ſublime expreſſion, which Sovereigns ought well to ponder. Much were it to be wiſhed that they taſted, like him, the happineſs of being beloved, and that, like him, they deſerved to be ſo. His goodneſs has gained him the ſirname of Beneficent; which is, to my taſte, the greateſt and moſt glorious title for a King.

ANECDOTE.

A Biſhop and a General being in company, the Biſhop gave the French King for a Toaſt. The General after drinking it, expreſſed his ſurpriſe that the Biſhop ſhould give ſuch a toaſt. I did it, ſaid the Biſhop, in compliment to you; for were it not for the French King, there would be no need of an Army. When it came to the General's turn, he gave the Devil; the Biſhop refuſing to drink it, the General inſiſted that he ſhould, declaring, that were it not for the Devil, there would be no occaſion for Eccleſiaſticks.

An ANECDOTE.

LORD Cheſterfield, a few days ſince, in converſation with a celebrated Female Hiſtorian, was aſked by the fair Writer, how he would deſcribe the three Georges of the Brunſwick Line, ſo as to give a ſtriking deſcription of them in the moſt laconic terms? I would, Madam, ſays the Earl, ſtyle the firſt George the wiſe; the ſecond, George the honeſt; and the third, continued his Lordſhip, fetching a deep ſigh—George—the unfortunate. February 14, 1772.

A FATHER'S ADVICE TO HIS SON.

BE good with ſpirit, and with parts be juſt;
Be kind to all, love few and fewer truſt,
Let prudence ſeize whate'er is learning's boaſt,
But oh! for learning be not virtue loſt.
Let mild humanity her aid extend;
God will repay what to men's wants you lend:
Then ſhalt thou travel to that bleſt abode,
Where virtuous men enjoy themſelves with God.

BOSTON, March 9.

The committee appointed by this town at their annual meeting in March last, to make application to some suitable gentleman to deliver an oration on the fifth instant, upon the dangerous tendency of standing armies, and in commemoration of the horrid massacre perpetrated by a party of the 29th regiment on the evening of the fifth of March, 1770, having acquainted the selectmen of the town that they had applied to Joseph Warren, Esq; and that he was ready to perform that service for the town: A meeting was thereupon legally assembled by the selectmen at Faneuil-Hall on Thursday last at nine o'clock in the forenoon; when the town unanimously voted their entire approbation of the choice the committee had made, and appointed another committee to wait upon Dr. Warren and acquaint him that it was the desire of the town that he would deliver the oration in the old south meeting-house, at half past twelve, at which time and place the meeting was then adjourned. When the intermediate time was expired, that capacious house was thronged with a very respectable assembly, consisting of the inhabitants and many of the clergy not only of this but the neighbouring towns. The orator had the universal applause of his audience; and his fellow citizens voted him their thanks, and requested a copy of his oration for the press, which we hear has since been obtained.

In the evening a select number of the true friends of constitutional liberty, met at Mrs. Clapham's in King-street, and exhibited on the balcony a lanthorn of transparent paintings, having, in front, a lively representation of the bloody massacre which was perpetrated near that spot.

Over which was inscribed,

"The fatal effect of a standing army, posted in a free city."

On the right was the figure of America sitting in a mourning posture, and looking down on the spectators, with this label,

"Behold, my SONS."

On the left side, a monument inscribed,

"To the memory of

Messrs. Samuel Gray,
Samuel Maverick,
James Caldwell,
Patrick Carr, and
Crispus Attucks, who were barbarously murdered by a party of the 29th regiment, on the 5th of March, 1770."

At a quarter after nine, the painting was taken in, and the bells muffled tolled 'till ten.

The whole was conducted with the greatest regularity; and the spectators, though amounting in the course of the evening to some thousands, behaved with that gravity as well as decency, which evidently shewed, that their hearts were deeply affected with the retrospect of so horrid a transaction.

We hear the Honourable James Bowdoin, Esq; has generously offered to the committee of Dr. Cooper's congregation, the donation of a large lot of land in Tremont-street, together with some materials on it, for the purpose of building a new meeting-house. The value of both is moderately computed at seven hundred pounds sterling.

We are informed, that great improvement hath lately been made in the method of illuminating light-houses, by an invention of the Honourable Henry Newton, Esq; of Halifax, Nova-Scotia.---In the former method, the oil decreasing, left the wick dry, which of course occasioned a faint light; the smoak also darkened the glasses, and obscured the light: To remedy which, fountain lamps are constructed that burn twenty hours without any seeming decrease of oil; by which means the wick has the oil floating constantly to it, and wants no snuffing (at most, but once a night) and is so contrived, that the waste oil falls [illegible] fountain. And to keep the glasses clean, tin funnels, [illegible] in the shape of speaking trumpets, hang over each [illegible] through the roof of the lanthorn, with raised [illegible] them, to prevent rain or snow falling down. [illegible] attendant at the light-house has only to light [illegible] evening, and they burn bright all night; whereas formerly, the lamps wanted to be supplied two or three times in a night, and snuffed every hour; and the glass could not possibly be kept clean from smoke.---Each lamp has three spouts which run into a bason at the bottom of the fountain, and thereby keep the oil so warm, that it never chills while they are burning. ----Another advantage is, that they burn a less quantity of oil than the others.----The Halifax LIGHT-HOUSE is lately altered upon the above plan, and is now acknowledged by all masters of vessels, to exhibit a remarkable bright steady and clear light.

March 16. The infamous murderer Ebenezer Richardson, was on Tuesday last dismissed by his Majesty's justices of the superior court, from his confinement in goal, for the murder of that innocent youth young Seider, recognizing without sureties in the sum of five hundred pounds, for his appearance when the court shall call upon him to plead his Majesty's pardon!! O tempora! O mores! May he not adapt the language of Cain and say, whosoever meeteth me will slay me! This affair was transacted in presence of a very few people, all the inhabitants being assembled at Faneuil-Hall, it being their annual town meeting. The murderer fled with precipitation, and crossed the ferry before the inhabitants were informed of it. Tell this in Britain, publish it in Ireland, and may America remember it for ever!

March 26. On the 18th instant, his Honour the Governor, with the advice of the Council, of the colony of Connecticut, was pleased to issue a proclamation, to prohibit the transporting or shipping on board any vessel for transportation out of that colony, wheat, rye, or Indian corn, until the twentieth day of May next.

April 6. A correspondent has sent us the following piece of intelligence brought by one of the last vessels from London, viz. "That it may be depended on that Capt. ---------, before he left that place, in conversation with Mr. ------, was informed, that he had just come from Lord North's, who speaking of the commissioners, said the ministry were much surprized that they should presume to appoint Mr. Waterhouse, Deputy Collector in the room of Mr. Sheaffe, when Mr. Harrison the Collector, before he left Boston, had appointed another, in case of Mr. Sheaffe's decease, &c. and that for this the commissioners had received a severe reprimand.---That the ministry acknowledged they had been greatly deceived in American affairs.----And that the revenue acts will certainly be repealed, and the commissioners recalled."

Last Friday morning, in the severe snow storm we then had, Captain Hood, in a brig from London, belonging to this place, finding he was near the land, and the weather so thick that he could not discover the Light-house, came to an anchor off the back of Nantasket, and cut away his masts in order to preserve the vessel and cargo; but notwithstanding which she soon after drifted ashore on the Beach there, and bilged: The cargo is mostly damaged, and the vessel it is thought will be lost; one of the seamen, named Paul Yendall, of this town, perished by the severity of the weather, the others with great difficulty saved themselves.----Another brig, Captain Conner, master, from Turks-Island, belonging to Newbury, was also drove ashore near the same place, but it is thought may be got off again.

We hear the most worshipful Joseph Warren, Esq; grand-master of ancient free and accepted masons in New-England, has granted a charter for the erection of a new lodge at Newbury-Port, by the name of St. Peter's lodge. A number of respectable masons there having petitioned for the same.

Extract of a letter from London, dated January 18, 1772.

---"I was in hopes I should have had the pleasure of communicating something that might be agreeable to you. But the conduct, particularly of the Court Councillors at Boston, has baffled the exertion of the few friends you had left here. I believe, never was a country, since the world began, so injured by ITS OWN CHILDREN. I will only tell you, that the Representations and Recommendations of your TOWN-BORN CHILD has done more real hurt to New-England, than you can easily imagine. This you may depend upon as A SACRED TRUTH."---

April 23. Friday last the General Assembly made choice of the following gentlemen to their respective offices: The Honourable Harrison Gray, Esq; Treasurer, and Receiver General. The Honourable Thomas Cushing, Esq; Commissary General. The Honourable James Russell, Esq; Impost Officer.

NEWPORT, (Rhode-Island) April 13.

In the late snow storm near 300 sheep, belonging to several farms on that part of this island called Brenton's Neck, were driven into the sea, or smothered in the snow.---Above 200 sheep were lost out of one flock upon the island of Prudence in the same storm; and many hundreds more in different parts of the country.

It is said, that near 600 sheep perished in the sea at Point Judith, in the late storms of snow.

NEW-LONDON, April 17.

The following gentlemen were on Monday last made choice of as Representatives at the next General Assembly, viz. for New-London, Col. Gurdon Saltonstall, William Hillhouse, Esq.---Hartford, Col. John Pitkin, Benjamin Payne, Esq.----Weathersfield, Major Elisha Williams, Mr. John Chester.---East-Windsor, Major Erastus Wolcott, Charles Ellsworth, Esq.---Middleton, Col. Jabez Hamlin, Matthew Talcott, Esq.---Norwich, Mr. Rufus Lathrop, Benjamin Huntington, Esq.----East-Haddam, Daniel Brainerd, Esq; Captain Dyar Throop.----Lyme, Major Samuel H. Parsons, Samuel Selden, Esq.---Groton, Captain Ebenezer Ledyard, Mr. Nathan Gallup.

NEW-HAVEN, April 10.

We are told, that there has been exported from this port, between the 15th of March, 1771, and the 20th of March, 1772, 1499 horses, 1531 oxen, 752000 hoops, 882500 staves, and 172600 weight of pot ash.

NEW-YORK, March 19.

On Thursday the 5th instant, it snowed fast and incessantly the whole day and great part of the morning and evening, attended with a high wind; so that the snow in general was very deep, and so much drifted in many places, that the roads were for some time impassable. It has snowed two or three days almost ever since, particularly on Thursday last, when it snowed fast the whole day, and added to what had fallen before, made it the deepest snow that is remembred for many years past.

When the bad weather began, people in general were but slenderly provided with fire wood, which was so far exhausted by the long continuance of the severe weather, whereby the boats were stopped from coming, that the price of nut wood rose in a few days from 35s. to £. 4, and oak from 28s. to £. 3, per cord.

On Wednesday last the 18th instant, was celebrated at the house of Mr. Abraham De La Montagnie, the anniversary of the REPEAL of the STAMP-ACT, where a considerable number of gentlemen were assembled, and spent the day with the greatest harmony and good order.---The day was celebrated in like manner by another company of gentlemen at PROTESTANT HALL, on Long-Island; mutual messages of congratulation were exchanged by them, and many loyal and patriotic toasts drank by both companies.

April 6. On Thursday last suddenly departed this life, the Widow Catherine Boelen, aged 82 years and 7 months.---She was the youngest of six sisters, whose maiden names were Waldron, (a reputable Dutch family in this province) three of them lived to a great age; namely, Judith to 85---Anne to 84---Mary to 80; and two are still living, Sarah and Cornelia, the one of whom is 89, the other 84 years and 5 months;---which added to the ages of the deceased, make 505 years.----The mother of these truly venerable matrons, died in the 95th year of her age, of a scratch in her arm, which mortified.

April 13. We hear that Capt. Thomas Farmer, late of the ship Tryon, is coming out in the Lady Gage, instead of Captain Kemble, who, (we are told) is appointed Inspector of the Customs for North-America.

April 20. Last Tuesday the barn belonging to Mr. Dow Tallman, of Naick, near Tappan, was struck with lightning, and burnt to the ground, with every thing therein, consisting of all his utensils of husbandry, nine horses, and some cows. The said Mr. Tallman, had the misfortune to have his dwelling house burnt down some years since.

PHILADELPHIA, April 9.

Capt. Biddle, who arrived here last Monday, from Hispaniola, informs, that a brig from Virginia, Graham, master, was lately seized by a French frigate, for having four hogsheads of sugar on board, which the Captain had taken in at Leoganne, in pay for lumber sold to the French General. The vessel was carried into Port-au-Prince, where she was condemned, and afterwards fitted out as a Guarda-Costa. Capt. Biddle met with very bad weather on the coast.

Tuesday night, the 31st ult. a fine Bermuda brig, (with 220 hogsheads of molasses on board) called the Lucre, Capt. Seymour, from Surinam for this port, ran ashore on a shoal, called the Hen and Chickens, which she beat over, and soon after sunk so suddenly, that it was with the greatest difficulty the people saved their lives, the boat floating off the deck before they had all got in.

Early on Friday morning last we had a considerable fall of snow, since which the weather has been very fine.

Extract of a letter from the Illinois country, dated Kaskaskias, June 14, 1771.

"The next day after Lieut. Chapman and Ensign Hutchins left this place, the Kickapoo Indians killed and scalped an Englishman and a negro on your plantation, but did no other mischief. Since then they have been seen three miles from Fort Chartres, to the number of about forty. You have a very large crop of wheat and corn in the ground, and I will do all in my power to have it gathered in, and to keep the cattle together. We live, as usual, in hourly expectations of more murders being committed by the savages."

Extract of a letter from the same gentleman, at the Illinois, dated at Kaskaskias, January 17, 1772.

"On the 17th of July last I went out to your plantation, to see if your harvest was gathered in, according to my agreement with the Frenchman I had hired for that purpose. A few minutes after I entered the house, eight Kickapoo Indians, who had seen me riding through the grande Prairie, followed me into the house, and as I had no means to defend myself, they immediately made me prisoner. From thence they conducted me through the Prairies to Wiotonon, (their town near the head of the Wabache river) where we arrived the ninth day of a most fatiguing march. They rode my horse by turns, but would never allow me the same indulgence. On our arrival at the town, they stripped and painted me black, as is usual with the savages when they intend to burn their prisoners. The next day they lighted a fire, bound and laid me before it, and were proceeding to exercise the most cruel tortures on me, when some French traders from Detroit, touched with compassion, interceded for my life, which after two days consultation, the savages agreed to allow, on the payment of a very great ransom; which, with my expences to return here, &c. will cost about Three Hundred Pounds. The 3d of August I left Wiotonon, and arrived here the 15th, from a miserable and distressing tour, which was worse than death to undergo.

"Since we have had possession of the Illinois country, the above nation of Indians, with their adherents, have taken seven Englishmen and one woman prisoners, scalped one soldier, of the 18th regiment, alive, killed and scalped upwards of thirty Englishmen, from the age of 18 to 30, and robbed English merchants boats and stores, to the value of Ten Thousand Pounds---yet no measures are fallen on to chastise their perfidy?"

April 23. Last week, Dr. Graham, Occulist and Aurist in this city, couched the eyes of Mrs. Rivel in Front-street, near the Sugar-house, for total blindness, and restored her sight, which she still retains perfect and clear.---The son of Mr. Glasford, of Newcastle county, was likewise perfectly cured of a deafness in both ears, which he had laboured under for several years. We hear that fourteen have been restored to their sight and hearing by the same gentleman, since the 1st of this instant, April.

April 30. The Governor and Assembly of Massachusetts met at Cambridge, the 8th inst. when his Excellency acquainted the house, That it was in his power to permit them to sit in the town of Boston, provided they would acknowledge the power of the King to call them to hold the General Assembly at any place he might think proper; which the members nobly and unanimously refused.

Extract of a letter from Barbados, dated March 20, 1772.

"Since my last arrived here Admiral Mann, with his squadron from the Leeward Islands, and are all at anchor in this bay, namely,---The Montague, Admiral Mann, of 60 guns; the Portland, Captain Walter Sterling, of 50 guns; the Quebec, Captain Reynolds, of 36 guns; the Kennington, Captain Clark, of 24 guns; the Active, Captain Williams, of 24 guns; the Favourite, Captain Biggs, of 20 guns; the Seahorse, Captain Passey, of 20 guns; and the Spy sloop, ---------, of 14 guns."

On Saturday morning last, between eight and nine o'clock, we had a small shock of an earthquake.

CHARLES-TOWN, April 19.

A fine LOT for Sale by private Contract, viz.

THAT valuable LOT of LAND in Charles-Town, known or diſtinguiſhed in the plan or model thereof, by the No. 191, ſituated at the weſt end, and on the north ſide of Tradd-ſtreet, between the houſes of Alexander Fraſer, Eſq; and the late Captain Thomas Elliott, deceaſed, containing in front on ſaid ſtreet, fifty-eight feet, eight inches, or thereabouts, with the advantage of a paſſage; and in depth one hundred and forty-three feet, or thereabouts; whereon is a BRICK HOUSE deſigned for kitchens or two tenements that were intended to be built, and will ſtill ſerve thoſe purpoſes. This Lot has a fine ſouth proſpect of Aſhley-River, and as the proprietor of the oppoſite lot may perhaps make his front on Friend-ſtreet to be uniform with the other houſes built at the ſouth end and weſt ſide of that ſtreet, with the garden running eaſt and weſt, there will be no obſtruction to the ſoutherly air from Aſhley-River, which muſt be very agreeable in the hot months, and may prevent the communication of any malignant diſtemper that may rage in the interior parts of the town, or contagion ariſing from noxious effluvia. Its vicinity alſo to ſeveral good landing places on Aſhley-River, particularly the Sugar-Houſe-Creek, where a public market will no doubt be ſoon eſtabliſhed, will greatly enhance the value of all lands in that part of the town; alſo being ſituated in an excellent neighbourhood of reputable inhabitants, renders it not only more eligible, but ſecure againſt the danger of fire; and being a vacant lot, the purchaſer will have the ſatisfaction of erecting buildings thereon according to his own taſte for pleaſure or profit; the area or ground plot admitting either of one large manſion houſe of twelve rooms, or to be divided into two tenements of ſix rooms each, with land ſufficient behind for a kitchen garden to each. And, as houſes in that airy and pleaſant part of the town are ſeldom or ever empty, it will afford a certain good income quarterly.

The purchaſer may have one, two, three, or four years credit, giving bond, with approved perſonal ſecurity, and paying the intereſt punctually every year, and if he chuſes it, one third or one fourth part of the principal will be received annually, by which inſtalments, the purchaſe money will be eaſily and inſenſibly ſunk. RICHARD-PARK STOBO.
